Committee.--Messrs. Lester, Everitt and Potter.
Report of the chairman of the committee on the Judiciary to whom was referred, An act to define in part the duties of the District Judges.

That as this bill is intended to diminish the salaries of the District Judges upon a contingency, it conflicts with the first section of the fourth article of the constitution, which declares that these Judges at stated periods, receive for their services a compensation not to be increased or diminished for and during the period for which they are elected. The bill also being intended to prescribe a punishment by fine, conflicts with that section of the constitution, which declares that no citizen shall be deprived of privileges, outlawed, or in any manner disfranchised, except by due course of the law of the land, and of that section which declares that the right of trial by jury shall forever remain inviolate. The committee are of opinion that the only punishment which congress can inflict upon civil officers, created by the constitution, without allowing the trial by jury, is that by impeachment, which extends only to removal from office and disqualification to hold any office of honor, trust or profit, under this government. In view thereof, of these provisions of the constitution, and fully impressed with the necessity of maintaining the spirit of that sacred instrument inviolate, and that in order to do this effectually, the judicial tribunals should remain forever independent of legislative influence and legislative control, the committee recommend that this bill be indefinitely postponed.
