ORDERS OF THE DAY.

"A Bill amending the laws of Probate sales" was taken up on its 3d reading; the following amendment of the Committee on the Judiciary, after "sales" insert "be on a day previous" was adopted. On motion of Mr. Jack, the bill was laid on the table until the 16th instant.

The message from the Executive was taken up and read as follows:
To the Honorable, the Senate:

The resolution of your Honorable body, of yesterday's date, requesting the Executive to lay before the Senate as soon as practicable, any and all communications which he may have received from the Governor, or other authorities of Yucatan, has been received, and in compliance therewith, the communications referred to are submitted with great pleasure, both in the originals, and, (as far as they have been translated) in the translations; that marked No. 1, and addressed to the Executive, is the only one he has himself ever received. It will be perceived that it amounts simply to a notification to the Executive of this government, that the government of Yucatan had no further occasion for our assistance at that time, and that they would not have under eight months. The other letters are addressed to the Secretary of State, to whose department the Senate is respectfully requested to direct their return, in as much as copies could not be conveniently prepared.

Since the date of these communications, the Executive has received no further intelligence from that quarter, except through the medium of the newspapers.

As no continuance of the correspondence seems to be suggested by these letters, the Executive did not for various reasons open one with the authorities of that country; particularly so as he did not deem it proper to fraternize with them, although assured that our vessels would always meet in the ports of Yucatan the most friendly reception.

At the time negotiations were first opened by this government with Yucatan, the present Executive, then a private citizen, could not but hope that any proposition from them in their then attitude would not be entertained by this government. They were an integral part of the Mexican Republic, with which we were at war. They had not separated themselves or assumed independency of Mexico. Therefore they were our enemies. To enter into arrangements with them, could not in my opinion change that character, or be productive of any good; but might result in serious injury to Texas.

The then Executive had a secret agent at Mexico, for the purpose of negotiating peace between Texas and that government; and no less than two ministers plenipotentiary and envoys extraordinary had been despatched with a view ostensibly to negotiate amicable relations; and professions were made of a disposition on the part of the government of Texas to promote that object.

In the face of these circumstances, for Texas to render aid and support to a rebellious portion of Mexico, was well calculated to produce feelings of the most hostile character on the part of the government of that country towards Texas. It was setting at naught every profession which had been made, and pretermitting every hope which might have been entertained of adjusting our affairs with Mexico.

Our connection with Yucatan stands without an example on record. She had not declared her independence; she was a portion of the Mexican Republic; and held herself as such dependent upon the contingencies of treaties. But had she declared her independence, it would have been unwise, impertinent, and indecent in Texas, to have thrust herself forward and been first to recognize the independence of a new community, in anticipation of the views and dispositions of the most powerful and best established governments in Christendom.

The Executive of Texas has not, nor had he ever any right under the constitution to form treaties of alliance with any other government; or to attempt to carry them into execution, without the sanction of the Senate. In the case of Yucatan, that body had given no expression in relation to such an alliance. Our navy was hundreds of miles detached from the protection of our coast, subsidized to a revolutionary portion of Mexico, and placed at their disposition, and after having been thus employed for months, returned destitute to our shores, not having been paid the amount contracted for, and without adding renown to our navy, or reaping glory or advantage for the country. Since that time all the means and efforts of this government have not been able to get the navy again to sea.

The whole transaction was not of this government; it was that of the individual placed at its head, without having authority either under the constitution or law; and whatever is done without authority is of course violative of that law from which the authority is assumed to be derived.

The Executive cannot but remark to your honorable body, that had he under all the circumstances attendant upon this alliance with Yucatan, continued the correspondence, he would have been acting in bad faith to the people of Texas; he does not wish to soil his skirts with the crime of treason, and were he to adhere to the enemies of the Republic and render to them aid and support, he would bring himself within the definition of treason under the constitution. He regards any aid rendered to Yucatan as ultimately serviceable to Mexico; assured as he is, that though the flickerings of a revolutionary spirit render to the malcontents a momentary gleam of hope, eventually they will be re-united to Mexico, and he would not be surprised if their adhesion had been tendered before the present moment.

SAM. HOUSTON.

On motion of Mr. Shaw, referred to the Committee on Foreign Relations. On motion of Mr. Jack, Mr. Smith was added to the Committee on Foreign Relations.

On motion of Mr. Randall, the Senate adjourned until tomorrow morning, 10 o'clock.

TUESDAY, Dec. 20th, 10, A. M.

Senate met pursuant to adjournment. The Vice President in the Chair—prayer by the Rev. Mr. Tryon—roll called—the following Senators answered to their names: Messrs. Barnett, Greer, Jack, Jones, Lawrence, Muse, Pattillo, Randall, Shaw, Smith and Titus—quorum present—the Journals of the preceding day were read and adopted.
Mr. Jack, one of the Committee on Finance, made the following report:

The Committee on Finance, to which was referred a resolution of the Senate, instructing them to inquire into the expediency of reducing the number of officers of the Government, and retrenching its expenditures, have instructed me to report.

Your committee are well satisfied that legislatures in their efforts to retrench expenditures and stop off redundances, are often in danger of running into extremes, and sometimes may endanger the interests of the people; by reducing the compensation of their officers, so low, that it becomes exceedingly difficult to command the services of men possessed of sufficient talent, qualifications and integrity. Entertaining this view, we are decidedly of opinion, that the salaries of the various officers of the government should not be reduced, as we conceive that even now they are scarcely sufficient to support the incumbeats decently.

But the committee is equally clear in the conviction, that there are several offices which may, with propriety, be abolished, and all the duties now required by law, may be discharged as satisfactorily by others.

The committee is of opinion, that at present, no essential benefit can result to the nation by the continuation of our foreign missions. We have but recently entered into treaties of Amity and Commerce with England and France; and the terms of a treaty have been agreed on between the United States of America and Texas. With the European powers, our intercourse is so limited, that no difficulties can be anticipated; and from the United States, we may always expect that the hand of kindness and paternity will be extended towards us.

All the duties which would devolve upon our foreign representatives, your committee confidently believe, may with propriety, be discharged with Consuls General, to be appointed by the Executive, who may reside in or near the Capitol of the foreign nation, and serve us as effectually as our Chargé d'Affaires. No difficulty will present itself, in procuring the services of such gentlemen without salary. But should an emergency arise which would produce the necessity of a special Agent, such an agent could be procured with but little expense to the nation. The committee therefore, recommend that our representatives at foreign courts be recalled.

We are farther of opinion, that the offices of "Secretary of Treasury," and of "War and Navy," may with great propriety, be abolished, without any the least detriment to the public service. From the experience of the past year, and even in preceding years, it is manifest that the duties of those offices, have repeatedly been discharged by Chief Clerks of the respective departments, and so far as we are informed, the action of those "Chief Clerks," has been as satisfactory, as if the heads of Departments had been personally present. Such being the fact, the conclusion is irresistible that these offices are mere sinecures, without any benefit to the nation, and ought not any longer to exist.

We therefore, recommend that the Treasurer be required by law, to perform all the duties of Secretary of the Treasury; and that the Secretary of State be required to perform all the duties of Secretary of War and Navy.

The blending of these offices will increase but little the labors of the Treasurer, or of the Secretary of State, and the nation thereby, save an expense of three thousand dollars, besides escaping from the dangerous influence of sinecure offices, and expanded Executive patronage.

As to the last proposition contained in the resolution of the Honorable Senate, we are convinced beyond all question, that the public service, and a fair and just disposition of the appropriation made by law, imperiously require that the head of Treasury Department should be entirely independent of the Executive, and responsible alone to the representatives of the nation, for the honest discharge of his important duties.

The experience of this and of other countries, has shown the dangerous effects resulting from the accumulation of power in the hands of any one man. And wherever the sword and the purse are united in an ambitious individual, the rights, if not the liberties of the people, may be in imminent peril. A system of favoritism, is certain to spring up, and the most just claims are often postponed, or rejected, from whim or caprice, or prejudice, thereby creating in the minds of the people, a distrust in the justice of their rulers, and a consequent disaffection to the government. It is a fact which none will now deny, that our government commenced its operations in 1836, on a scale entirely too magnificent, and with a prodigal expenditure, much beyond the means of the nation, and its impoverished condition. The evil was then seen, and its effects predicted by some; but the anticipated loan it was thought, would relieve us from all embarrassment, and enable us to sustain our credit.

When that bubble had bursted, the nation found itself irredeemably bankrupt, and the system of repudiation commenced.
This repudiation was absolutely necessary, to our existence as a nation, and upon this principle can be justified.

During the last winter, the Congress seems to have been for the first time, aroused from their previous lethargy, and important retractions were made in our expenditures. That Congress deserves the gratitude of the nation, for commencing a work of reformation, and we would prove recreant to the interests of our constituents, if we neglect the present opportunity to consummate an undertaking of such vital importance to the prosperity and happiness of the nation.

Your committee, therefore, beg leave to offer the accompanying bill, which they recommend to the serious consideration of the Honorable Senate.

And introduced a Bill to be entitled "an act to abolish certain offices therein named," which report was adopted, and bill read 1st time.

Mr. Muse moved that two hundred and fifty copies of said report be printed—motion lost.

Mr. Randall, chairman of the Committee on Engrossed Bills, reported: that a bill to be entitled "a joint resolution requiring the President to order an election for Major General," had been examined, and found to be correctly engrossed.

A message was received from the President in writing, through his private Secretary Mr. Miller, to wit:
EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT,
Washington, D.C., 23d, 1842.

To the Honorable the Senate, and House of Representatives.

The President deems it his imperative duty to inform the Honorable Congress, that he has been recently assured, that the different tribes of Indians have in possession as prisoners, no less than eleven Texians, and that they will be brought to the Waco village at the time set apart for entering into a treaty with them, with the intention on the part of the Indians to exchange them for their own people, held by us as prisoners, as well as others held by the Lipan and Toncuhua tribes.

The Executive has ever regarded the reclamation of our prisoners from the Indians, as a matter of the deepest interest, not only to their relations, but to every humane and generous heart, and he has also believed that it could never be effected unless peace could be restored and established between the people of Texas and the Indians.

The Executive feels confident that the Honorable Congress will not require any incentive which he could offer, to induce them to place in his power the means to perform an act, so well calculated to fill every human breast with pleasure and satisfaction. The Indians being apprised that we hold many of their people, as prisoners, will be induced to retain ours, until they are assured that theirs are all in good faith restored.

The President has not the power or means by law to compel those citizens who hold the Indian prisoners to surrender them to his order so as to enable him to obtain the restoration of ours, to their homes and country, and to give once more to our frontiers peace and tranquillity. The passage of a law with adequate penalties, authorizing him to compel all who may refuse to place the prisoners at his disposal, to give them up subject to his order, and also, to enable him to employ such person or persons, as may be necessary to collect the prisoners and conduct them to the treaty ground, by the time at which the contracting parties may arrive, is respectfully recommended. It is also proper to suggest, that when the prisoners shall have been collected, they should have comfortable clothing and blankets.

Without the necessary appropriation this cannot be done, nor can the services of such persons as will be necessary to carry out the objects of the government, be procured unless sufficient means are placed within the control of the President to ensure a reasonable compensation.

SAM HOUSTON.
Which was read, and on motion, referred to the Committee on Indian Affairs.

A message was received from the House of Representatives through their Chief Clerk Mr. Raymond, transmitting a communication from the President marked "secret" with a request that the Senate would go into secret session upon the same.

A message was received from the President, in writing, through his private Secretary, Mr. Miller, to wit:

"EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT, \{\
Washington, Dec. 27, 1842. \}\n
To the Honorable, the Senate, and House of Representatives:

The Executive herewith transmits the Honorable Congress, an estimate of the amount required to equip and maintain one company of cavalry upon the frontier for one year. It embraces the items deemed indispensable, in a well regulated service, and certainly does not overstate the sum which would be required. By reference to similar service in this country, heretofore, the accuracy of the estimate will be established, and it will be seen that the sum of fifty-four thousand, four hundred and sixty-five dollars and ninety-two cents, would be all absorbed. It would also be fair to calculate upon the general estimate, when the service is not better regulated than ours, an additional amount of fifty per cent, to cover contingencies.

Unlike the service of all other countries, we have no Commissariat Department; and custom has dispensed, with all responsibility in officers of the line, as all accountability in officers who have had the disbursement of the public funds. Disobedience on the part of the subalterns, and the most flagrant violations of duty, have heretofore received the approbation of Congress. From the nature of our service, it is often impossible to assemble Courts Martial for the trial of officers; and hence it is that delinquents go unpunished, and subordination and discipline come to be totally disregarded—no matter how great the outrage against the rules and laws established for the government of the army—no matter how mutinous, and insubordinate and insulting to his immediate commanding officer—the Congress or Executive, an officer may be: according to the doctrine heretofore proclaimed, he is not to be stricken from the rolls. But, in contempt of all order, and in the face of the soldiery whom he has disgraced, he is to triumph in his defiance. Unless, therefore, power to bestow adequate and certain punishment is acknowledged to exist somewhere, no good can be expected to result to the country from our military expenditures, and the idea of national protection, under such circumstances, becomes supremely ridiculous.

It will be perceived from the accompanying estimate, that the amount of twenty thousand dollars in Exchequer bills, appropriated by last Congress, was totally inadequate to the creation of a force for the protection of the south-western frontier. The Executive deemed it useless to attempt an impossibility, and he had no inclination to squander the amount placed at his disposition.

Hence, it is that a portion of that appropriation has remained subject to the action of the Honorable Congress, transferring it to other purposes—such portions as have been used were devoted to giving every feasible facility to the attainment of the object intended. No regular constituted companies were maintained, because that would have been impracticable; but in various other ways, aid, encouragement and support were extended, resulting either directly or indirectly in promoting the safety of the frontiers.

Such portions as may not be required to meet obligations thus incurred, will be held subject to the future action of the Honorable Congress.

A message was received from the President in writing, through his private Secretary Mr. Miller, to wit:

EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT,
Washington Dec. 28th, 1842.

To the Honorable, the Senate, and House of Representatives:

The Executive avails himself of the earliest opportunity to present to the consideration of the Congress, a subject upon which its action is respectfully invited.

It appears that certain grantees presented a memorial dated the 25th of April, 1839, whose names will be seen in the accompanying despatch of the Hon. Charles Elliot, Her Britannic Majesty’s Chargé d’Affaires to Texas, in which they claim various grants of land, under the colonization laws of the General Congress of Mexico, of the year 1829—and for which they seem inclined to claim remuneration, from the fact that the revolution of 1835, prevented a compliance on their part with the conditions of their grants.

It is to be regretted that copies of these grants have not been presented to this government; the dates, as well as the conditions of the grants, are consequently unknown; and though the memorialists allege that they did take measures to fulfill their contracts with the Mexican Government; they do not show that they had performed any one of the conditions; nor do they set forth that their contracts were not forfeited before the year 1835. If such grants ever did in reality exist, it certainly will be competent for them to show when they were made, the conditions annexed, and that the grants were not forfeited by an omission to perform their conditions.
It was the duty of the memorialists at an early day, to have acquainted the Government of Texas with the existence of these grants, and to have made them, or copies of them, a part of the archives of the country. If this has been done, by reference to the General Land Office, the facts can be ascertained.

The only wish that the Executive can entertain upon this matter, is that if merit should be found in the premises, equity may be done to the claimants: should the existing laws have interposed any obstacle to an equitable adjustment of their rights.

A law was passed by Congress opening the Courts of Justice to all empressarios: and whilst others have availed themselves of the benefit of these laws, it is to be regretted that the present memorialists had not thought proper to make use of similar advantages.

It will be perceived also, by the despatch of the Hon. Mr. Elliot, that the former settlers of San Patricio have solicited in their behalf, the interposition of Her Majesty’s Government.

With deference, I would suggest that if the former citizens of that section of the country were compelled to leave their homes in consequence of the war in 1835, since that time this government has interposed no obstacle to the resumption of their former possessions. Their situation was truly harassing and calamitous: and though the major part of them fled to Mexico for protection, it was natural that they should have done so, inasmuch as the Mexican troops were at that time in possession of that portion of our Territory. No act of forfeiture has since then been passed to the prejudice of those claimants, nor would the government upon their application, have prevented them from re-settling their lands: though they were debarred of the right by the provision of the constitution of 1836.

It will be perceived that the greatest leniency has been exercised, and that those who incurred the penalty of forfeiture, have never suffered from its enforcement. If they were really subjects of Her Majesty’s Government, they could not hold land of their own right within the Republic of Mexico, and if they were bona fide Mexican citizens, it would not be within the province of any government, other than Mexico, to interfere in their behalf. They were either Mexican citizens, or British subjects; and as they make no reclamation of their homes as the latter, they thereby decide the question, and therefore, cannot hold land in right of being Mexican citizens.

The Executive would respectfully suggest, that if they wish to return to their homes, and are willing to render allegiance to the Republic of Texas, he would not feel authorized, in the absence of prohibitory provisions, to prevent the peaceful occupation of their former residences. Hence, it would seem that any provision in their behalf would be unnecessary; and that the course for them to pursue, would be to communicate their disposition and wishes to the Government, which would extend to them leave to return to the country.

It is respectfully requested that the Honorable Senate will cause this communication, with the accompanying papers, to be forwarded to the other branch of the Congress for its information and action.

SAM. HOUSTON.

The select Committee, Mr. Jones, chairman, to whom was referred a bill to be entitled "an act, for the removal of the General Land Office," reported the following, to wit:

"To the Honorable, the Vice President, and President of the Senate:

A majority of your Committee, to whom was referred a bill to be entitled "a joint resolution, for the removal of the General Land Office," have given the subject all the investigation its importance merits.

A majority of your Committee are of opinion, that the only benefit which could result from the passage of the resolution, would be an expression of opinion, approving that illegal and unauthorized act of the President, in secretly raising an armed force, for the purpose of removing the archives from the seat of Government established by law, at a time when the representatives of the people were in Congress assembled, and deliberating on the propriety of their removal.

A majority of your Committee are of opinion, that it was impolitic locating the seat of Government at Austin, and that the archives of the nation, were for a time exposed, on account of our unfriendly relations with all the Indian tribes; but having been assured by the President, that his negotiation now pending, will inevitably result in a perpetual peace, have satisfied your Committee, that the archives are at this time in less danger than at any former period.

A majority of your Committee are of opinion, that the President of the Republic, in morally and legally bound under his oath of office, and the action of the present Congress, to remove (with the Heads of Departments) to the seat of Government established by law, which will obviate the necessity of removing the archives, save an unnecessary expenditure of the people's money, and have a salutary effect in restoring confidence and tranquility to the frontier settlements.

Therefore, a majority of your Committee, have instructed me to return to the Senate, the joint resolution, and recommend its indefinite postponement. OLIVER JONES, Chairman."
