STATEMENT OF VOTE

When roll call was taken today, I was away from my desk. I was present after roll call, but did not check in with the journal clerk.

Peña

The invocation was offered by Dr. David Fleming, pastor, Champion Forest Baptist Church, Houston, as follows:

Our Father, thank you for the privilege to stand in this hall this morning and to lift my voice to you in prayer. Thank you for listening to us as we pray even on this day after a National Day of Prayer. And thank you that prayer is powerful and effective everyday because you have promised to move and work according to your will in response to our praying.

We acknowledge you this morning, Father, as our creator God. You are sovereign and supreme and you reign and rule in wisdom and in power. You have blessed this great nation of ours and this great state of ours throughout our history, and we owe you a great debt of gratitude and thanks for your goodness to us as a people. We confess, we've not always followed you closely, we've not always made the right decisions, and we've not always acknowledged and honored you as we should have, but you have always been merciful, gracious, and kind to us. Thank you. And we pray this morning that you will continue to help us, in spite of ourselves, to guide us and to bless us because we need you, Father, more than we need anything or anyone.

We pray this morning for unity and harmony as a nation and for peace around the world. But in the absence of peace, we pray for the men and women who serve our great nation in military service. We are reminded that freedom isn't free and there are many who have paid the price and are paying the price for our freedom and for our safety and security. Bless each one along with their families today, protect and preserve their lives, give them success in their mission, and bring them home safely and quickly.

And we ask now that you would bless these leaders here who govern over us and who have authority over us that you have divinely ordained. Give them wisdom to govern rightly and courage to govern fairly. May what is good and just in your sight prevail, and may you look on these men and women with favor and grace as they seek the greater good, serve a higher calling, and submit to your sovereign will and way. May they be reminded each day of the privilege of their office as well as the responsibility of their office. And thank you Lord for each one of these who serves under your authority and at the pleasure of the good people of the great State of Texas.

You have said in your word: "Righteousness exalts a nation, but sin is a disgrace to any people." (Proverbs 14:34) May what happens in this room today be right and may the people of Texas be lifted up as a result. And we pray our prayer in the name of Jesus Christ, your holy son, our perfect sacrifice, the living Lord, and our soon coming king. Amen.

The speaker recognized Representative Riddle who led the house in the pledges of allegiance to the United States and Texas flags.

(Speaker in the chair)

ADDRESS BY REPRESENTATIVE Y. DAVIS ON A MATTER OF PERSONAL PRIVILEGE

The chair recognized Representative Y. Davis who addressed the house on a matter of personal privilege, speaking as follows:

Thank you, Mr. Speaker, for granting me this privilege and members, I ask your indulgence for just a few minutes. While we come here from different places and different perspectives there is no doubt we share a common interest. This is the great State of Texas and, in particular, the Texas House of Representatives. We're here because we love it and we love what it means for the State of Texas. It saddens me today to take time to make these kinds of remarks, but also I think it's my responsibility and my obligation to do so.

I have been here for the last three sessions under the new regime, or the new administration, and I'm really delighted today to be able to say to the members, "Thank you for your willingness to stand up for something that you know was happening that is wrong." I am pleased to say for those who are willing to set aside 65 pieces of legislation—who committed to do that—so that we could have your bills postponed and placed on a calendar on Monday, and we were told that was going to happen. We were told we were trying to get on Monday's calendar, and I went to you and asked for you all to look at the process and let's look at how we can make sure that all members are treated with respect as it relates to how things are done around here. And 65 people, 65 pieces of legislation were willing to be postponed and set aside to do that because we care about this environment, this house of representatives, this process that we call democracy, and I want to thank you for that.

I'm saddened to tell you there is no calendar to be set for Monday, unless they do so after this speech. But the most important part that I want to say to you is, I wouldn't ask you to sacrifice and put your bills on Wednesday. We were told when we started talking about this that we were going to have a calendar on Monday and I felt certain, that if my bills were on Monday and your bills were on Monday, that we could work together for the better of Texas. But I was told there probably won't be a calendar on Monday. In fact, a list was handed out and my bill wasn't even on there. But you know what, I want to tell you what makes it even a victory at the same time. It's a loss for me. The victory is that many of you wouldn't have gotten your bills considered either. So, you got a list because we were told previously that there was no list to look at. So all of you got a list of the bills that would be considered for Wednesday's calendar, which prior to the conversation yesterday, that wasn't even in place. So I'm pleased that I'm able to help you get your bills on.

You know, it's ironic that a couple of nights ago the chairman of the committee would suggest that this may very well be retaliatory because when he had bills when I was the chair of Calendars—Local and Consent Calendars—he didn't get his bills set. And when we went back and did the research, we reminded him that he had sent us two bills and we set two bills. He sent us three bills and we set three bills. So we gave him 100 percent of what he sent to us. We couldn't set what wasn't in our calendar. Then some have said, "Well, you know, this is a labor union bill and that's why it's being held up." Well this labor union bill passed this house two years ago with Will Hartnett as a co-sponsor of it. This is a bill for my Dallas police, my Dallas firefighters, and the city of Dallas who wanted this—have this meet and confer—as we do all of the State of Texas there are meet and confer bills. So it creates a harmonious environment for them to discuss the critical issues for their police and their firefighters—for small cities and large cities. So we know it wasn't because it was a labor and union bill because it's already been demonstrated. The bill passed here once before. But also because we pass these kinds of bills.

And then they said, "You know, maybe we need to look at the bills and see when it got there." Well it's been there a couple of weeks or so. And then, members, actually I applaud you because today is the first day that I've ever had members come up to me and say we are willing to postpone our bills because we think we all ought to be treated the same. And I want to tell you, that's a new day for Texas and a great day for Texas. Because at the end of the day, when we talk about the losses in this chamber, my one bill is okay. I understand the process. It could have gotten killed in another committee. But what we may have very well gained today is we very well may have gained an opportunity to get members to get engaged and take their power back and be real members of this house chamber and not relegate and not allow staff, if it's staff, or others to take the responsibility that we took the oath to uphold for the 145,000 or more people we represent in our various districts.

Because we came here as leaders, men and women from your respective roles you were elected as leaders to lead. And for some unknown, or forgone, reason you get in this chamber and you become little boys and little girls following and compromising your own integrity and your own sense of right and wrong just to be a part of this or just to exist. The greatest threat we have to our democracy is when men and women don't stand up for right and wrong. It's not about my one bill. I'm over that. In fact, I called my police and firefighters last week and told them that it looks like this bill is hung up and we're not going to get it out, and you know what they said to me? "Representative Davis, please don't compromise your integrity and what you stand for. We expect you to stand bold for us. So if we lose a bill, we lose a bill, but we want you whole when you come back to tell us what you did for us." And so the one piece of legislation, while it's important—I want to be good to my constituents and do what they sent me to do. I want to be able to say I was successful, but I want to tell you the bigger problem here. It's what everybody else is losing because they won't stand up.

I'm comfortable knowing that I'm going to lose something for standing up for something I believe in. I'm comfortable with that, because I can't think of any better way to lose it than standing up for something I believe in. And if we get members engaged in this process enough to say I will postpone my bills because we want everybody treated fairly, that's a victory here. That's a victory because it says to everybody, wherever you are, that there are people who are willing to say right and wrong is always right and wrong and it will prevail. It will prevail.

So, I just want people to know that I'm not going to ask you to postpone your bills to Wednesday. And someone even suggested I might get my bill on Friday. I'm not going to ask you to do that. I'm going to leave that up to you. You've worked for your bills. I want to make sure that members know I didn't come to this chamber to figure out how to kill bills. I didn't come into this chamber to figure out how to destroy things. I came here to build and help toward building a stronger Texas and stronger Texans. It was not about how we can destroy. And so everybody got all antsy saying, "You know you are going to kill bills." Well, I raised points of orders because I think the rules are appropriate. And when I'm told that I can't offer amendments on the floor to a bill to deal with appropriations, and that money has been set aside and we can't even touch it, and somebody can put a bill on local and consent with a $9 billion fiscal note, I've got a problem with that and I'm going to use the rules that way. I think it's important that you understand the distinction, though.

We're told we can't do certain kinds of things and we see it happening everyday, when we raise legitimate points of order and we're overruled and we go sit down knowing full well that it's a good point of order—when we've had some of them pre-cleared and they're overruled. We've taken all that. I just want you to know that the greater loss is to the chamber, to the institution, to the house of representatives, and ultimately to the State of Texas. When we're willing to not stand up for what we ought to be doing on behalf of those 145,000 people that we represent. Or more, I know some of you have larger districts. So I just wanted to say I don't expect you to necessarily not pass your bills. I'm not asking my colleagues to stand up and kill bills. We're bigger than that. We're bigger than that. You know somebody said, "I don't have a problem with you." I don't have a problem with you either, but somebody has a need to keep us fighting. Somebody has a need to keep us from working together. That's the question we need to be asking, why and who? Because it is imperative for this state to move forward; we've got to work together. We've got to build and grow together. And so when somebody is trying to keep a wedge, we need to be asking, who and why? And if it's happening to me today—

I know many of you feel like you are part of the team and you've been told to just follow along. Let's just get along and you wait your turn. The team of what? The team of what? Because I will tell you, Representative Turner, we applaud that you were selected as the speaker pro tempore. But we see them bash you up here. We see them disrespect you up here. These members out here have been told to flank and get on your amendments about separating and changing the names of the utility companies when the utility company was already doing it in Dallas. It wasn't a new phenomenon. TXU and Encore are already separating and using different names. They fought you like you were trying to do something different. It's already being done. It's because nobody wants to stop and look and work on real, legitimate issues together for the greater good. For the greater good. For the people we come here to represent. We want to think that we can stay in our little world, and our little district, and our little space, and go to committees, and sit on committees, and vote to stay with the chair, and do all this stuff. Let me tell you something. That's what's going to destroy our democracy. That's what's going to destroy this state. It's not going to be the terrorists. We going to do it here internally. We're doing it here internally.

We applaud, and salute, and memorialize folks who are going to war to institute democracy somewhere else. Now we can't get men and women here to stand up for it here. Something is wrong with that and you want to know who and why someone is trying to perpetuate that in this environment. So I just want people to know there was 65 pieces of legislation willing to be set aside and postponed if we could get other people's bills set. We accomplished one of those goals. There was a list passed out and you all know this is the first list that has been passed out to the Local and Consent Calendars folks. So they can say which bills would be considered for Wednesday's calendar, and I know Mr. Vo was concerned that his name was on this list. So it helped. And I'm glad because I think sometimes you have to sacrifice something to help somebody else and I'm all about that. Because you know what? Everybody wins when the institution wins.

So I'm pleased that you want to do that and I want to tell you, please don't take this as a lack of disrespect for you, because I know that you all did it thinking it was the right thing to do and I appreciate it. But I'm not going to ask you to do that because you know the first thing was we were going to do it on Monday and now it's Wednesday, so I want you to get your legislation because I want you to be able to go back and say I did these things, because I'm going to go back and tell them what I stood for and I'm going to be proud of that. If nothing else, for the first time we got Democrats and Republicans and republican chairs and democratic chairs willing to say, let's work together for Texas. If it means we have to give a little, we're willing to give a little so that somebody else can get something. That hasn't happened in six years, members. That hasn't happened in six years.

I've had freshmen who say, "We voted for some of your legislation and got our arms cut up." They knew it was right. They come from their communities where they were leaders, but they get cut up because they do what's right. Members, if this environment is going to survive and if we are going to do stuff right and good for the State of Texas and the people in the State of Texas, you've got to assume your responsibility. You've got to decide if you want to stand up and do what's right in the role you've been given. We can't ask anybody else to do it if we're not willing to do it. I thank those of you who came to me and said, "I'm ready to kill. I'm packing and I'm ready to kill bills." That's not necessary. This house, the way it's been run and what's going on, has done more to destroy bills than I could ever or you could ever do. Because this is rampant with fault. And all of us ought to go home and check ourselves and see if we were part of the problem or part of the solution. Thank you.
