HB 2685 - MOTION TO CONCUR IN SENATE AMENDMENTS

Representative Chisum called up with senate amendments for consideration at this time,

HB 2685, A bill to be entitled An Act relating to certain requirements for issuance of a marriage license, including an optional premarital education course.

Representative Chisum moved that the house concur in the senate amendments to HB 2685.

HB 2685 - STATEMENT OF LEGISLATIVE INTENT

REPRESENTATIVE BURNAM: Chairman Chisum, I have a number of questions for you that are intended to provide legislative intent.

REPRESENTATIVE CHISUM: Alright.

BURNAM: Under Section (1)(d), Section (1)(d) indicates that the curriculum for this course should come from the Department of Health and Human Services Healthy Marriage Initiative, the National Healthy Marriage Resource Center, developed by the Health and Human Services Commission, and other similar resources. Can you elaborate on what other similar resources means?

CHISUM: There are other similar resources out there for this education course, many of which are religious organizations that do that, or churches and other religious organizations as well as counselor groups out there that do the healthy marriage education course prior to marriage.

BURNAM: How will these religious and community organizations be included, say, for example, if their current course offering is not the same number of hours?

CHISUM: They have to have similar conditions in order to be qualified for that, so they have to have a qualified course to do that.

BURNAM: Will it be up to the commissioner to promulgate those guidelines defining whether or not they're similar?

CHISUM: Yes.

BURNAM: Previously, this legislation defined marriage educator as a mental health professional who holds at least a master's degree with a background in family therapy. That definition is now removed. How would you define a "marriage educator"?

CHISUM: Well, there are marriage educators that are qualified by the commissioner to do marriage education, and some of them are not master's degrees. Some of them are just bachelor's degrees that do that, and that's all we're doing.

BURNAM: This bill removes the requirement that the county clerk keep a roster of area course providers who meet the requirements of this section, and it also removes the requirement that the county clerk keep a list of providers who offer the course on a sliding scale without charge. You made the point when the bill came to the floor originally that this legislation would be especially helpful to the poor who suffer most from unhealthy marriages. Why, then, are we no longer providing a list of the courses that are offered at no charge?

CHISUM: I would hope that the senate didn't remove that, I don't know why they did.

BURNAM: Is it your hope that the commissioner will develop that in their rules and regulations?

CHISUM: That would be my hope, and I think that even if they don't, I think counties would certainly keep that there for them to—

BURNAM: You think, but can you declare that the intent is—

CHISUM: The intent is for the commissioner to make sure that information is available to people when they come to get their marriage licenses.

BURNAM: Thank you. The bill indicates that there will be an Internet website where providers can register. Can I assume that this website will be accessible to the public so they can search for a provider?

CHISUM: That is correct.

BURNAM: Will the county clerk's office be required to provide a computer with Internet access for public use in their offices, so those without their own computers or Internet access can search for a provider at the county clerk's office?

CHISUM: That would be my intent.

BURNAM: That is your intent. Will the providers be required to list the cost of the course on the website?

CHISUM: Absolutely, yes.

BURNAM: This bill still doubles the cost of a marriage license for those who do not take the state-approved course. Many houses of worship require that a couple getting married in their facility take a course from one of their clergy. If the house of worship does not offer a course that is state-approved, you would be forcing this couple to either pay for an additional course that is approved by the state, or pay a $60 fee for the marriage license. You're essentially taxing the couple for their religious convictions. Do you feel like it is appropriate for the state to not only tax marriage, but also punish those couples who choose to take their premarital instruction from an organization or house of worship that the state has not met your agenda?

CHISUM: Well, I don't see that it's a punishment. Actually what we're doing is saying that if you do this, that it is in the interest of the State of Texas that you have this course, and if you do that, we'll reward you for it. If you choose not to do it, then it's a choice you make, and it's not anything you have to do. The choice is the couples' that comes before them.

BURNAM: So it's your intent to enable any faith community to provide this marriage counseling?

CHISUM: Absolutely.

REPRESENTATIVE BOLTON: I'm going to ask you to clarify, with the senate amendments, what the fee now is in this bill. We just want to be really clear.

CHISUM: Okay. The fee would be $30 if you take this course; if you do not take the course, it's $60.

BOLTON: What is the fee right now for a marriage license in Texas?

CHISUM: $30.

BOLTON: $30?

CHISUM: Right.

BOLTON: So essentially, if you choose, for whatever personal religious reasons you might have not to take this course, that's a marriage tax of $30 for each couple.

CHISUM: Correct. Our intent is to have healthy marriages, that's correct.

BOLTON: I'm still going to ask you again, I just want to be really clear.

CHISUM: Okay.

BOLTON: It's now going to cost $60 to get married, if you don't take this course.

CHISUM: I believe that's correct, yes.

BOLTON: Okay, so the senate stripped out the amendment that we had put in in the house in that regard.

CHISUM: Right.
