DIGEST

Currently, justices and judges in Texas are elected to their positions as part of the general election. In recent years, the United State Justice Department has blocked the creation of several new courts in Texas because of the department's objection under the Voting Rights Act to the Texas judicial election system. In addition, judicial elections are on a partisan ballot, even though judges must be nonpartisan in office. Appellate court elections force judges to raise large amounts of money with which to conduct campaigns. This bill will change the election of justices and judges in Texas to make the election nonpartisan, provides for retention elections, and creates new judicial districts.

PURPOSE

As proposed, S.B. 409 provides regulations for the nonpartisan election of district judges, the retention or rejection of district and appellate judges, and creates new judicial districts.

RULEMAKING AUTHORITY

Rulemaking authority is granted to the secretary of state in SECTION 5 (Sections 291.005 and 292.009, Election Code) of this bill.
