DIGEST

Currently, Texas law requires a county judicial officer or a candidate for that office to file a financial statement with the county clerk. This provides access to information such as financial holdings, personal residence, and the names of dependent children. Recently, some county court-at-law and probate judges have been the targets of retaliation by individuals who oppose the judges' decisions or judicial authority. The concern has been raised that the information available on the financial statement has been used by the individuals to harass or annoy the judges. This bill authorizes the financial statement to be filed with the county clerk or the Texas Ethics Commission, and requires the names of dependent children to be removed from the financial statement upon written request.

PURPOSE

As proposed, S.B. 73 provides for the filing of and public access to financial statements of county judicial officers and candidates for that office.

RULEMAKING AUTHORITY

This bill does not grant any additional rulemaking authority to a state officer, institution, or agency.
