DIGEST

The devastating environmental and economic effects of the droughts of 1996 and 1998 have increased the importance of water planning and its effects on agriculture, the largest water users in the state's economy. The Texas Department of Agriculture has expressed interest in being a more active participant in the water resources planning activities ongoing throughout the state. This bill would more directly involve the Texas Department of Agriculture in the water resource planning and management activities of the state.

PURPOSE

As proposed, S.B. 1310 provides for representation of agricultural interests in the water resource planning and management activities of the state.

RULEMAKING AUTHORITY

This bill does not grant any additional rulemaking authority to a state officer, institution, or agency.
