DIGEST AND PURPOSE

Currently, some parents have left the public school system for private schools or home schools, but might return if they were offered the support of a content-rich curriculum, adaptive lessons, and certified teachers without losing the flexibility of home-based learning. As proposed, S.B. 933 establishes virtual charter schools that utilize technology to deliver instruction through the internet or in virtual or remote setting; permits public colleges and universities to operate virtual schools that meet state standards and assess students' academic performance at least once a week; allows students to work at an individualized pace that does not prohibit any student from working at a different grade level in any subject; evaluates virtual charter schools annually on student achievement through the Texas Assessment of Knowledge and Skills (TAKS) and evaluates the fiscal and operation performance of schools.
