AUTHOR'S/SPONSOR'S STATEMENT OF INTENT

Dallas County Water Control and Improvement District No. 6 (district) is requesting that its existing boundaries be validated by legislation. The district believes that the territory in the district has been properly annexed. The district does not intend this legislation to expand its boundaries or add any additional territory with any proposed legislation. The district only desires to correct any possible surveying errors made in annexing land since the last legislative validation in 1991.

While the district does not know of any clerical errors, past experience has shown that some minor errors can occur. For example, even with the 1991 validation there were surveying issues that had to be resolved with the Texas Natural Resource and Conservation Commission, now the Texas Commission on Environmental Quality (TCEQ), with a survey of the district in 1997. Consequently, due to recent issues in 2004 with TCEQ concerning escrowed bond monies where the district had to seek assistance in securing escrow release, the district feels it is prudent to now seek the validation of its boundaries. Such delays can mean an increase in interest rates which can be costly to the district's taxpayers.
