AUTHOR'S / SPONSOR'S STATEMENT OF INTENT

According to a May 2007, report by Texas A&M University Agriculture and Food Policy Center, the Texas deer breeding industry contributes $652 million to the Texas economy including supporting 7,335 jobs in Texas, most of which are in rural areas. The Texas Parks and Wildlife Department reported in November 2008, that there were 1,094 deer breeder permittees who own 1,156 breeder facilities in Texas with approximately 70,701 breeder deer in facilities located across the state.

Breeders invest considerable time, effort, and money in caring for these animals, including required routine testing and health maintenance. Reasonable access to veterinary care is crucial for the continued maintenance and health of their animals and to supporting this growing industry. Many farmers, ranchers, and cattlemen have highlighted the need for more rural large animal veterinarians in rural areas. Since the growth of the Texas deer breeding industry, the need has extended to include large animal practitioners who are familiar with deer medicine needs and protocols.

As proposed, S.B. 1667 creates the Rural Veterinarian Loan Repayment Program as an additional program administered by the Office of Rural Community Affairs to provide loan repayment assistance to veterinarians who agree to practice veterinary medicine on livestock or deer in a designated rural area.
