AUTHOR'S / SPONSOR'S STATEMENT OF INTENT

The need for home- and community-based services attendants has been growing at an unprecedented rate in Texas. By 2016, the state will need four million direct care workers. According to the Paraprofessional Healthcare Institute, the demand will be greater than that for teachers from kindergarten through high school (3.8 million), registered nurses (3.1 million), and waiters and waitresses (2.7 million).

Despite the growing demand for home care attendants, Texas will fail to attract a sufficient workforce due to uncompetitive wages and few, if any, benefits. Texas ranks 50th in regards to mean wages for personal and home care aides. Over a quarter of a million attendants across Texas make $7.50 an hour, earning an annual income of $15,201. Furthermore, home care attendants do not receive benefits, sick days, or paid vacation days. Many attendants must provide for their own health care coverage as well as transportation expenses.

As proposed, S.B. 1850 establishes a 13 member Home- and Community-based Workforce Council (council) to address issues related to home- and community-based services. The council is to be composed of recipients of home- and community-based services, family members of recipients, attendants, aging and disability advocacy organizations, and providers of services. The council is intended to identify and study workforce issues, review the current and anticipated need and workforce availability, and solicit, review, and make policy and funding recommendations to the executive commissioner of the Texas Health and Human Services Commission and the legislature.
