AUTHOR'S / SPONSOR'S STATEMENT OF INTENT

Law enforcement agencies across the state deal with thousands of different criminal street gangs and their members. In dealing with these dangerous groups, the value of gang-related intelligence data to law enforcement is two-fold. Such information may prove invaluable in law enforcement and may even save the life of a law enforcement officer.

Currently, under Section 61.02 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, a law enforcement agency in Texas has the option to compile gang data into a local or regional database. If a law enforcement agency compiles the data, it must provide the information to the Department of Public Safety (DPS) to be included in the statewide database. However, there is currently no requirement that local law enforcement agencies collect any data on gangs within their jurisdiction.

DPS operates and maintains a statewide database, the Texas Gang Database, which is housed in Austin. This database was established in 1999 and has the capability to receive, maintain, and share information provided by more than 1,000 law enforcement agencies in Texas.

S.B. 418 amends current law relating to the compilation, maintenance, and release of information in a criminal street gang intelligence database by law enforcement agencies and criminal justice agencies.

RULEMAKING AUTHORITY

Rulemaking authority is expressly granted to the Department of Public Safety of the State of Texas in SECTION 4 (Article 61.12, Code of Criminal Procedure) of this bill.
