AUTHOR'S / SPONSOR'S STATEMENT OF INTENT

The eFileTexas.gov system is a centralized and uniform electronic filing system used by Texas courts since 2003. In December 2012, the Texas Supreme Court mandated statewide electronic filing by attorneys in civil cases in appellate, district, and county courts. Between the years 2003-2013, e-filing operated as a fee-for service or "toll road" model. Under this model, filers had to pay a transaction fee (ranging from $13-$31 per document) each time they submitted a document. In 2013, the legislature changed the funding model from the "toll road" model to a one-time fee per case. H.B. 2302, 83rd Legislature, Regular Session, 2013, set a $20 civil filing fee in appellate, district and county courts; a $10 fee in justice courts; and a $5 fee in criminal courts. The legislature hoped that these changes would produce sufficient revenue to cover the e-filing contract costs. However, due to a dramatic drop in civil case filings between fiscal year (FY) 2012 and FY 2014, there is a financial shortfall in funding for the e-filing system.

C.S.S.B. 1970 addresses this problem by raising the filing fee for civil cases in appellate, district, and county courts from $20 to $30. This amount will cover the shortfall for the 2014-2015 biennium and be sufficient to sustain funding for the e-filing system in the future.

C.S.S.B. 1970 amends current law relating to increasing the electronic filing fee for certain courts.
