AUTHOR'S / SPONSOR'S STATEMENT OF INTENT

In the November 2016 election, Lamar County voters approved entry into the taxing district for Paris Junior College (PJC). Prior to the election, the taxing district of PJC included the Paris City limits and the boundaries of a former, nearby school district. With the entire county now participating in providing tax revenue to PJC, the college is requesting that its governing board be adjusted to represent effectively and efficiently the interests of these taxpayers.

H.B. 4276 allows PJC's board to reduce the number of its trustees from nine to seven, with four of these members elected from Lamar County's four precincts and three members elected at large. In addition, the bill would allow PJC to adjust the election date of its board members to the November general election. Aligning four of PJC's board districts with county precinct lines and moving trustee elections to the November general election will save taxpayer money. Sharing county precinct and trustee district lines will allow the county and the college to reduce their combined costs associated with redistricting after every decennial census. In addition, moving the selection of college trustees to the November general election will allow PJC to share in election expenses with other local government entities placing items on the ballot.

Texarkana College (TC) has gone through a similar process. Bowie County voters approved entry into the college's taxing district in 2012, and the legislature authorized TC to reduce board membership to seven, aligning four of those seats with county precinct lines and leaving three at large. These good governance measures also would benefit PJC and Lamar County.

H.B. 4276 amends current law relating to the Paris Junior College District.
