AUTHOR'S / SPONSOR'S STATEMENT OF INTENT

The College Credit for Heroes program was created in 2011 to help veterans transition more quickly into the workforce. Participating colleges can award credit hours based on prior training, education, or military experience.

Each institution of higher education determines how many credit hours they will award, which varies from college to college. Lack of data on how much credit is awarded makes it difficult to track the success of the program.

H.B. 493 requires that the Texas Workforce Commission, in consultation with the Texas Higher Education Coordinating Board (THECB), report how many academic or workforce credit hours are awarded each academic year.

H.B. 493 also requires that the report disaggregate credit hours awarded by subject matter. Additionally, THECB would report the number of transfer credit hours awarded. These metrics could provide insight on how we can improve the program.

H.B. 493 amends current law relating to reporting requirements for the College Credit for Heroes program.
